18 ANNIVERSARY FEATURE

The Greatest Game Ever Pitched...

For 12 innings on a night back in 1959, Harvey Haddix was perfection, holding the Milwaukee Braves hitless while not allowing a single runner to reach base. After 25 years, Haddix looks back on that memorable record-setting performance. Plus, Lew Burdette, the Braves' hurler, recounts his thoughts on that incredible contest.

32 HALL OF FAME

The Pirates' Glory is Preserved in Baseball's Hall of Fame...

The most memorable performers of this great game are enshrined in the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, NY. Among those past stars are several Pirate legends, including Honus Wagner, the Waner brothers and Roberto Clemente.

43 PIRATES IN THE COMMUNITY

A Combination of Caring and Doing...

The Pirates are an Important Contributor to the Community. The Pirates' commitment to Pittsburgh calls for more than putting a championship team on the field. The Pirates go much further, spreading goodwill and support to innumerable worthy causes in the community.

54 PROSPECTS

The Pirates Continue to Produce Top Major League Talent...

For years, the Pirates have produced top major league performers from within their minor league system. And that tradition continues today, with several youngsters looming on the horizon, ready to contribute to future championships.

7 CHUCK TANNER

MANAGER

The true leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates is Manager Chuck Tanner. Since becoming a major league manager in 1970, Chuck has compiled 1,067 wins and ranks 31st on the major leagues' all-time win list. In 1984, Tanner is sure to move past former Bucs manager Danny Murtaugh (1,115), Billy Martin (1,122), Hughie Jennings (1,131) and Frankie Frisch (1,137) to move to 27th, and he is 95 wins shy of catching Lou Boudreau (1,162) in 26th position.

The Pirates' manager since 1977, the 54-year old Tanner has put together a won-lost record of 579-494 (.540) and has the third most wins of any manager in Pirate history; Murtaugh (1,115) and Fred Clarke (1,422) are the only Buc skippers with more victories.

A native of nearby New Castle, PA, Chuck brings great enthusiasm to the game and is aiming at bringing the Pirates their second World Championship under his realm.

31 HARVEY HADDIX

PITCHING COACH

Harvey Haddix is in sixth season as the Pirates' pitching coach, having joined Chuck Tanner's staff in 1979. But Harvey's relationship with the Pirates goes back much further than '79.

Haddix became a Pirate in 1959 after pitching with St. Louis, Philadelphia and Cincinnati. And it was in '59 that Harvey made history as he pitched 12 perfect innings in a game against the Milwaukee Braves (full details on Harvey's amazing feat can be found in a special feature on page 18).

In 453 big league games, the 58-year old Haddix was 136-113 with a 3.63 ERA. He retired from active duty in 1965 and has served as a coach in the Mets, Pirates, Reds, Red Sox and Indians organizations.

23 GRANT JACKSON BULLPEN COACH

Grant Jackson is in his second season as the Pirates' bullpen coach after finishing up a fine playing career in 1982.

The author of 86 big league wins, Jackson played a key role in the Pirates' bullpen success in the mid-1970's, and was a big contributor to the Bucs' championship effort in 1979. In '79, "Buck" was 8-5 with 14 saves and a 2.96 ERA in 72 outings as the club's lefthanded stopper. In the '79 LCS, he was 1-0 in two games and was also 1-0 in four World Series appearances against Baltimore.

The 41-year old Jackson began his major league career with the Phillies in 1965 and also pitched for Baltimore, the Yankees, Kansas City and Montreal.

32 JOE LONNETT THIRD BASE COACH

Joe Lonnett is in his 14th year as a third base coach under Chuck Tanner, having been with him since Chuck began managing in 1971.

The 57-year old Lonnett spent 15 seasons as a catcher in professional baseball, including four years with the Phillies, before retiring in 1963. He went on to scout for the Phils for six years before joining Tanner with the White Sox.

A native of Beaver, PA, Joe handles the third base coaching responsibilities and also oversees the catchers' defensive work.

42 AL MONCHAK FIRST BASE COACH

Al Monchak serves as the Pirates' first base coach and infield defensive instructor. With Chuck Tanner since 1971, Al brings a wealth of experience to his job.

Monchak's playing career began in 1937 and ended 20 years later, with all but 19 games with the Phillies in 1940 coming in the minor leagues.

As the Pirates' defensive coach, Al has helped improve the play of many Pirates, including Dale Berra and Johnny Ray, both of whom spend many extra hours in the spring working with Monchak.

55 RICK PETERSON COACH

Peterson, the newest member of the staff, spent the last five seasons as a coach in the Bucs' minor league system, including the last three at the Class AA level (Buffalo in 1981 and 1982 and Lynn in 1983). Rick is in uniform on the field during pre-game drills, but during the game works out of the stands or press box, coordinating the Pirate defense and charting pitches. A former lefthanded pitcher, Rick is a graduate of Mt. Lebanon High School, and was selected by the Bucs in the June 1976 free agent draft.

48 BOB SKINNER BATTING INSTRUCTOR

Bob Skinner is the Bucs' batting instructor and is charged with sharpening each hitter's skills to get the most out of every at-bat.

A lifetime .277 hitter in 1,381 major league games, Bob began his professional playing career in 1951 and played with the Pirates, Reds and Cardinals before retiring in 1966. After his playing days ended, Skinner turned to managing, first with the Phillies' AAA San Diego club in 1967 and later at the big league level with the Phils and San Diego Padres. He has been a member of Chuck Tanner's staff since the 1979 season.

our business is buildings.

We affect the lives of thousands of people in Pittsburgh every day, yet most of them aren't even aware of it. And frankly, as the largest building management and leasing agents in downtown Pittsburgh, that's just the way we like it!

You see, we believe efficient building management and leasing should go unnoticed. The people who work in a building (or who own it) shouldn't have to worry about such things as contracting with responsible tenants, controlling building temperatures, monitoring fire safety systems, day-to-day programming of the elevators, or around the clock building security.

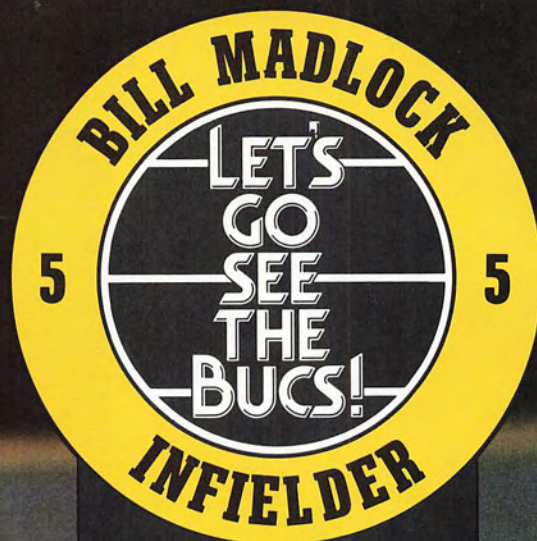

These areas, along with others, are the responsibility of a professional building management and leasing team like John W. Galbreath & Co. We're experts in management and leasing, as well as real estate development, commercial and investment brokerage, project planning, design consultation, financing, and construction management.

So, if our efforts toward making things run smoothly, comfortably, and efficiently sometimes go unnoticed, it's okay ... that's our business.

In the history of baseball, there are only 11 players who have won four or more batting titles. The latest to accomplish the feat is Pirates' third baseman Bill Madlock, who picked up his fourth Silver Bat in 1983 when he hit .323 for the Bucs.

In winning the crown, Madlock joined former greats like Ty Cobb (12 titles), Honus Wagner (8), Rogers Hornsby (7), Stan Musial (7), Rod Carew (7), Ted Williams (6), Cap Anson (4), Dan Brouthers (4), Harry Heilmann (4) and Roberto Clemente (4).

The 33-year old Pirate captain has been one of the main cogs in the Bucs' attack since coming to the club in 1979. A 10-year veteran, Madlock has compiled a .317 career batting average in 1,340 games and shows no signs of slowing down.

Bill Madlock

In the span of just three seasons, Dale Berra has established himself as one of the real iron-men of the National League.

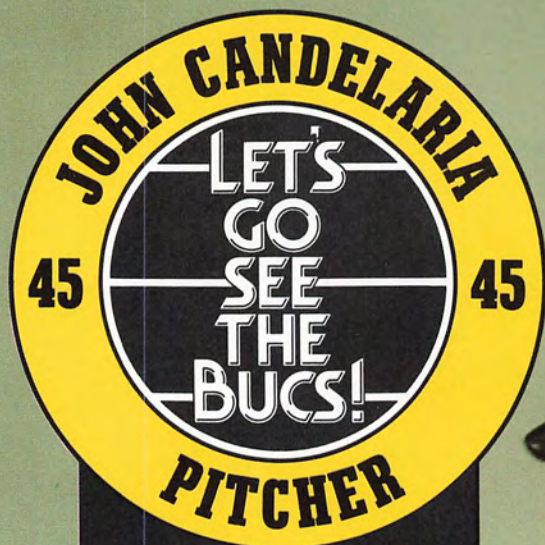

In 1982, Berra played in 156 games as the Pirates' shortstop and batted .263 with 10 home runs and 61 RBI. And in 1983, Dale played in 161 games and was the Bucs' shortstop in all but 29 innings of action as he continued to establish his credentials as a bonafide standout at his position.

The 27-year old Berra came into the 1984 season with a lifetime .242 batting average with 37 home runs and 203 RBI in 608 career games.

Berra teams with second baseman Johnny Ray to form one of the best offensive DP combos in baseball

Leftlander John Candelaria is quickly moving up the list of the top pitchers in Pirate history.

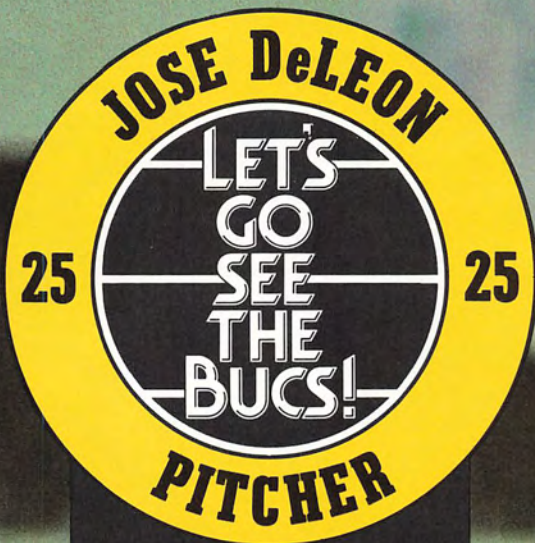

In 1983, Candy posted a 15-8 record, notching his 100th career victory on June 17 against the Phillies and finishing with 110 lifetime wins. He entered the 1984 season ranked 11th on the Bucs' all-time list and is sure to move well up the ladder during the season.

To get a true picture of Candelaria's effectiveness, one has to look no further than his rating among his peers. Of all active major league pitchers with 100-plus wins, John ranks fourth in winning percentage behind Ron Guidry, Jim Palmer and Tom Seaver. Candelaria is 110-69 (.615) with a 3.14 ERA in 251 career appearances.

John Candelaria

Jose DeLeon burst on the scene in a big way in 1983, flirting with no-hitters on three different occasions after being recalled from Hawaii on July 20.

In posting his 7-3 record and 2.83 ERA in 15 starts, the 23-year old DeLeon pitched 6.1 no-hit innings vs. San Diego in his second career start, had an 8.1 inning no-hit performance vs. the Mets in his next start and had a no-hitter for 6.2 innings vs. Cincinnati on August 20. For his near no-hitters against the Padres and Mets, Jose was the N.L. Player of the Week for the week ending July 31.

Along with his outstanding performance with the Pirates, DeLeon also had a great year at Hawaii in '83, going 11-6 with a league leading 3.04 ERA in 20 starts.

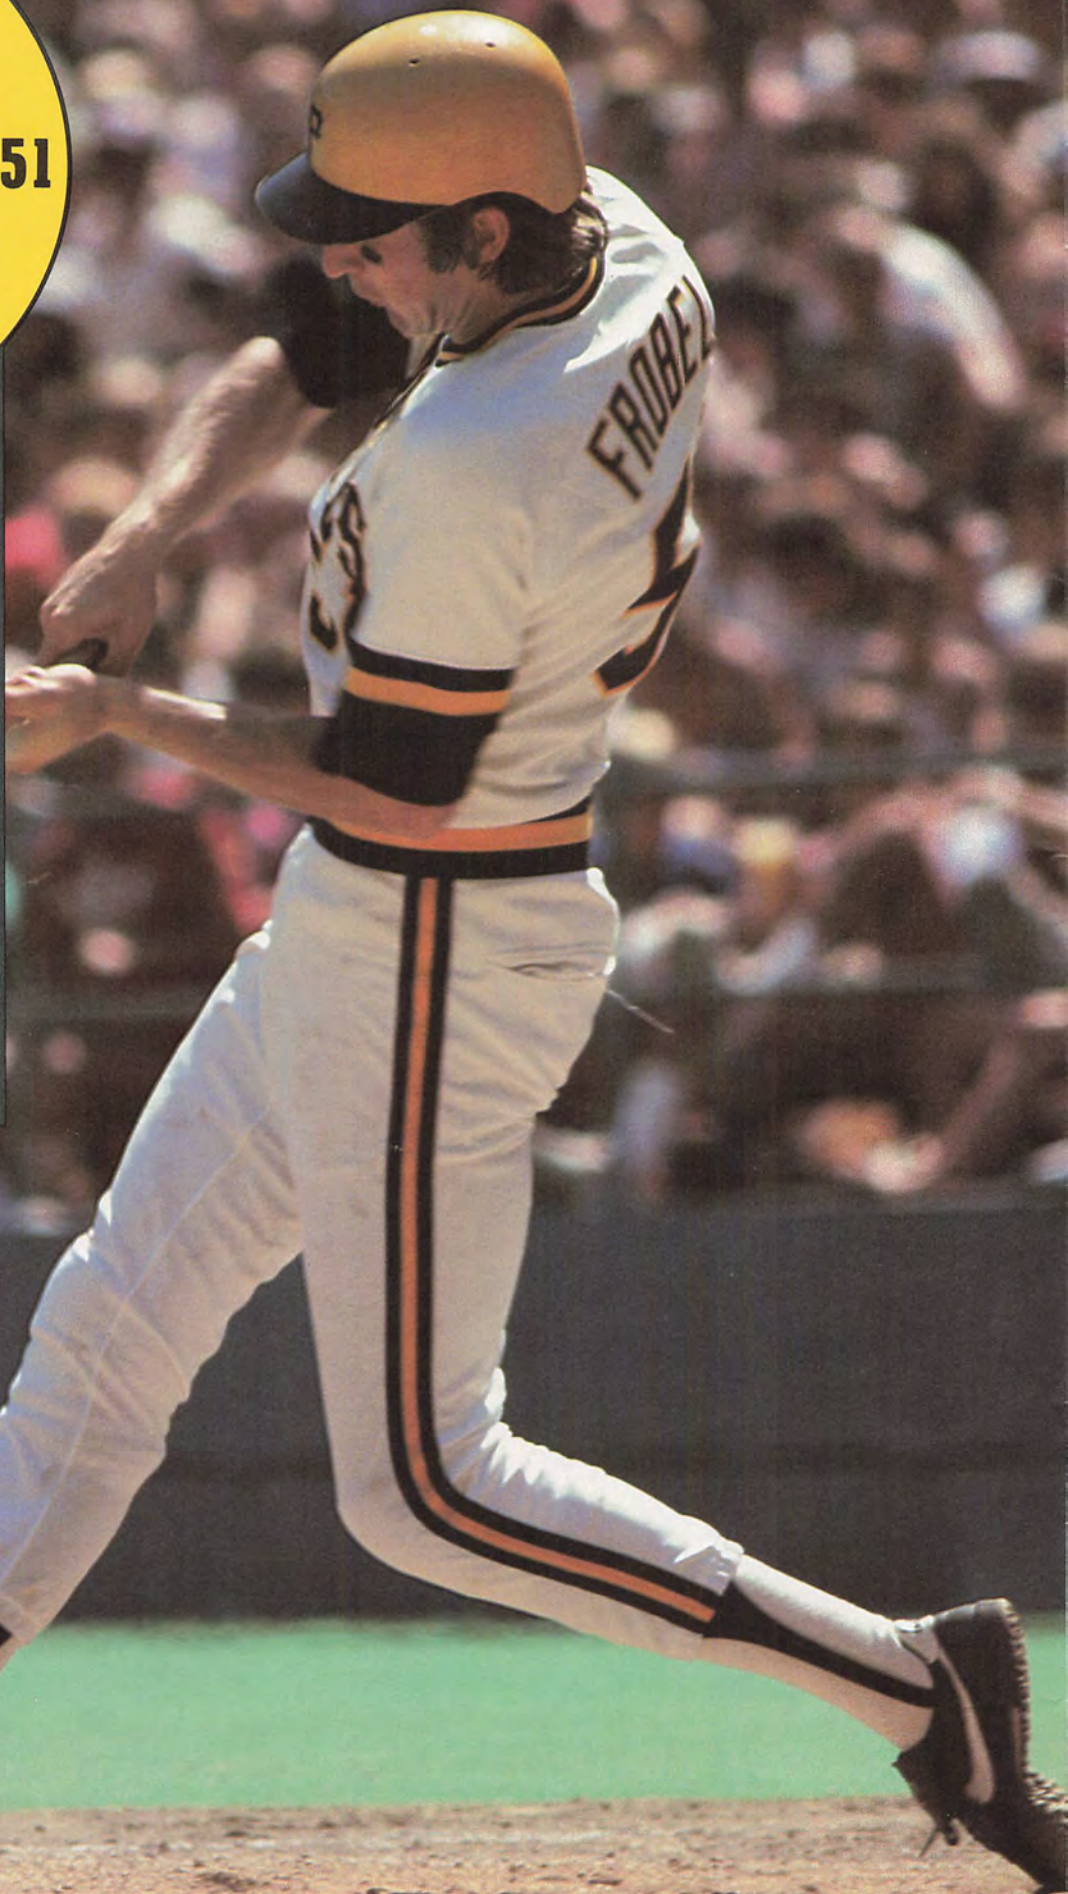

One of the bright players in the Pirates' future, Doug Frobel could be a key to the Bucs' success in 1984.

An outstanding lefthand-hitting power hitter, the 24-year old Frobel batted .304 with 24 home runs and 80 RBI at Hawaii in 1983 before being recalled by the Bucs on August 10, replacing the injured Mike Easler. After joining the Pirates, Frobel made immediate contributions while playing left field and finished his short stint with the Pirates batting .283 with three home runs and 11 RBI, including a game-winning RBI in his first game on August 12 at Montreal. The game-winner was especially sweet for Frobel because he hails from Ottawa, Ontario.

Righthander Cecilio Guante has helped solidify the Pirate bullpen and is being counted on to continue his improvement in 1984.

In 1983, Guante opened the season at Hawaii but was recalled on May 26. Although his 2-6 record was not impressive, he came up with several outstanding appearances and finished with nine saves—second on the staff behind Kent Tekulve—and a 3.32 ERA.

Cecilio worked mainly as a long man but did see some short duty out of the bullpen behind Tekulve and lefthander Rod Scurry. Guante figures to work in a similar role throughout 1984.

Guante also saw action with the Pirates in 1982 and has a lifetime 2-6 mark with nine saves and a 3.32 ERA in 59 games.

Cecilio Guante

Outfielder Brian Harper continues to establish his credentials as a legitimate regular major league outfielder, and 1984 could be a big year for him.

Acquired by the Pirates in December, 1981, from California in exchange for Tim Foli, Harper has made steady progress with the Bucs. In 1982, he appeared in just 20 games for the Pirates, but played in 61 contests in 1983. And although he batted just .221 on the season, he came on strong over the final 2½ months of the season, batting .304 in his final 27 games.

Harper could develop into a key power producer for the Pirates. In '83, he hit seven home runs in a span of just 86 at-bats at one point in the season.

Brian Harper

If the Pirates can boast of a true sparkplug, it has to be Lee Lacy. Whether at bat or on the bases, Lacy knows how to make things happen.

Since joining the Pirates in 1979, Lacy has stolen 119 bases, and as a lifetime .283 hitter, Lacy has been the player who has started many big innings for the Bucs.

In 1983, Lee put together his second straight .300 season and stole 31 bases in 108 games. Lacy's baserunning reached its greatest peak early in the season when he stole 13 bases in as many attempts before being nailed by the Padres' Terry Kennedy on April 30.

With the departure of Dave Parker and Mike Easler, Lacy can be expected to play a big role in the Pirates' outfield.

A lower back strain played a much bigger role than just keeping Lee Mazzilli out of the starting lineup for one game last June after starting every contest in centerfield for the Bucs.

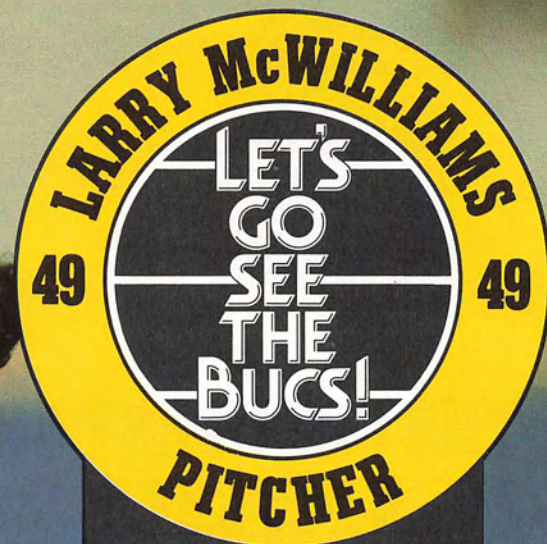

While Mazzilli was out with the back problem—he was leading the N.L. in walks, was second in on-base pct. and was batting .284 when he sat out on June 12—the Pirates acquired Marvell Wynne from the New York Mets and Wynne immediately stepped in and took over as the Pirates' regular centerfielder.

In 1984, the 29-year old Mazzilli will be looking to rebound and win a starting job in either left or right field.

A lifetime .265 hitter, Mazzilli has past credentials which point out his ability and with a few breaks, Lee could play a big role in the Bucs' future.

Mazzilli.

Lefthander Larry McWilliams is looking to repeat his tremendous 1983 performance which saw him selected to several post-season all-star teams and finish fifth in the voting for the N.L. Cy Young Award. In his first full season as a Pirate, McWilliams was 15-8 with a 3.25 ERA in 35 starts. He set career highs in wins, complete games (8), shutouts (4), strikeouts (199), innings pitched (238.0) and starts. He also tied for second in the N.L. in shutouts, was third in strikeouts, tied for sixth in wins, tied for seventh in complete games and was ninth in innings pitched.

Acquired from Atlanta in June, 1982, the 30-year old McWilliams has helped solidify the Pirates' starting pitching and is a big reason why the Bucs' staff is one of the best in baseball.

THE GREATEST GAME EVER PITCHED

by John Mehno

The greatest one-hitter ever pitched is a little greater, 25 years later.

It was May 26, 1959 when Harvey Haddix pitched 12 perfect innings against the Milwaukee Braves. He retired 36 consecutive batters before Felix Mantilla was safe on Don Hoak's throwing error and Joe Adcock ended the no-hitter and game with a blast over the right centerfield fence.

Haddix lost the game but was a national celebrity the next day, explaining his story countless times. Until last summer, though, he didn't know the whole story.

Former Braves' righthander Bob Buhl let him in on the well kept secret at an Old Timers game in Chicago last year. The Braves, it seems, were stealing catcher Smoky Burgess' signals all night from a centerfield bullpen vantage point and relaying the pitch selection to the hitter.

* 12 innings

"He was laughing like the devil when he told me," Haddix says.

Lew Burdette, the winning pitcher, cannot verify any espionage. He struck out three times and grounded out once and says he did it alone.

"If they were stealing the signs, they didn't let me in on it," he says.

But Buhl, who now lives in Florida, stands by the story.

"I called all the pitches, that's the reason I know," he says. "It was real easy to get them. (Burgess) was so short and squatty, sometimes the coaches on the base-lines could pick them up because of the way he'd crouch. It was real easy to get him."

The system, as explained by Buhl, involved designating someone in the bullpen to signal the hitter after the catcher's sign was detected. If the relay man looked straight ahead, the message was fastball. Turning in either direction would indicate another pitch.

Sign stealing was a popular pastime of the era, when ballpark scoreboards offered hiding places rather than instant replays. Buhl and Haddix both say that a flickering exit sign at Wrigley Field was a regular semaphore for sign stealers and Haddix recalls Gene Mauch insisting that umpires evict several Pirates from the Forbes Field scoreboard.

Today, centerfield television cameras have taken away the challenge and the Braves' lack of success would seem to raise serious questions about the value of sign stealing.

"In the long run it almost always pays off," says Buhl. "We called about every pitch that night but he did such a good job of changing speeds that it didn't help."

Harvey Haddix (left) and Joe Adcock, the man with the only Braves' hit on that May night 25 years ago.

Throughout the game, Haddix' teammates avoided speaking to him. It was baseball superstition to shun a pitcher working on a no-hitter, but logic also supported the theory of avoiding the pitcher.

"I was sick with the flu the whole night," Haddix says. "I was sucking on throat lozenges all night."

The Braves were defending World Champions and occupied first place in the eight team National League on that May night. Haddix was a 33 year old veteran of seven major league seasons who had been 3-2 in his first year with the Pirates. He, Burgess and Hoak had come to Pittsburgh from Cincinnati that January in exchange for Frank Thomas and three others.

Despite the presence of hitters like Henry Aaron, Eddie Mathews and Adcock ("They had some pretty good mashers," Haddix recalls), the Braves presented no problem in that game.

"The one thing that sticks out is how easy it was," says Haddix. "There weren't any hard plays."

The silence about the no-hitter was broken by Braves' catcher Del Crandall when Haddix stepped in to hit in the seventh inning.

"He told me, 'You've got a pretty good game going,' " Haddix says.

It remained a pretty good game through six more innings. The perfect game ended on Hoak's low throw to start the 13th. Mathews sacrificed and Aaron was intentionally walked. That brought up Adcock, with whom Haddix had already shared some unpleasant history. On July 1, 1954, Haddix lost a chance for a 20-win season when Adcock hit a line drive off the pitcher's knee. It caused some nerve damage in the leg and Haddix won only five games in the final three months to finish with 18 wins for St. Louis.

This time the damage was strictly emotional. Adcock jumped on a hanging 1-0 slider and hit an apparent home run. Mantilla scored but Aaron, thinking the game ended with Mantilla's run, cut across the field without touching third base or home plate. By the time he did, Adcock already had and the last two runs didn't count. The final score wasn't settled until the next day when League President Warren Giles officially ruled it 1-0 and Adcock's hit a double.

No matter what the score, Haddix headed for the clubhouse knowing that he had lost and that he had pitched a no-hitter for 12 innings. He couldn't remember if he had walked anyone.

"After the game all the reporters flocked to me and they had never done that before," he says. "I didn't know that I had done something that hadn't been done before because I was never interested in going back and looking at the records. I told the writers to give me a minute to get my marbles together and then I talked to them. The longer they talked, the more I began to realize."

Naturally, the game dominated the next day's papers. The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph bannered, "The MOST About Haddix—BY FAR!" across its front page, right above a ten paragraph story that ran under the byline of Mrs. Harvey Haddix. For the record, she was thrilled by the accomplishment, disappointed with the loss and unhappy with the radio reception at the Haddix home in Ohio.

Meanwhile, the phone kept ringing in Milwaukee. The Ed Sullivan Show, then an American institution, called with an invitation to appear, as did several lesser shows. Haddix turned everyone down.

"I was still sick but I wouldn't have taken them anyway," he says. "You would have been running all over the country. I never left the ballclub. My feelings were really mixed, What can you celebrate when you didn't win?"

Since retiring as a player in 1965, Harvey Haddix has worked as a pitching coach for the Mets, Reds, Red Sox and Indians and is in his sixth season with the Pirates.

When he walks to the mound to talk to a pitcher, it's a safe guess that somewhere in the stands, a generation gap is being bridged with the retelling of the story of the greatest game ever lost. There is an episode of "All in the Family" that opens with Archie Bunker and his methead son-in-law in a loud argument over whether Haddix' 12-inning game should be considered a no-hitter.

Haddix was a quality major league pitcher for 14 years, winning a total of 136 games. He was the winning pitcher in the fifth and seventh games of the 1960 World Series. When he's remembered, though, it's usually for the 133 pitches he threw one Tuesday night in Milwaukee.

"Every day that I'm in the game of baseball, someone brings it up," says Haddix. "They don't let you forget. It's kind of nice to remember."

THE FORGOTTEN MAN

In less than three hours, the Pirates got Lew Burdette to give up 12 hits and smoking.

"The game was so fast I didn't even have time to smoke a cigarette in the runway between innings," says Burdette. "It was a fast 12 innings."

Burdette's Milwaukee Braves teammates were heading back to the dugout quickly, retired with very little difficulty by Harvey Haddix.

"It was one of those kind of freaky things," says Burdette, who now lives near Bradenton, Fla. "We didn't hit the ball hardly out of the infield. I don't think there were any balls hit hard until Adcock's. As far as I can remember, there were no spectacular plays and there weren't any close calls that the official scorer could have changed."

Burdette helped put Haddix in the record book when he struck out to end the ninth inning. But as the 13th inning unfolded, Burdette quickly became one of the most ignored winning pitchers in baseball history. He placed a call to his opponent after the game, offering condolences with a sharp needle.

"I told Harvey that I scattered my 12 hits and he bunched his one," says Burdette. "I told him that and he hung up on me. Later he called me over and had me tell it again in front of a bunch of writers. Harvey and I are good friends."

"I was sorry as hell that he didn't win it. I've thought about that a lot. It was a damn shame Harvey didn't win it."

Jim Morrison would certainly prefer being an everyday player. But as a reserve infielder for the Pirates, Jim has proven to be one of the most productive subs in the N.L.

Acquired from the Chicago White Sox in June, 1982, the 31-year old Morrison has proven his value to the Bucs by playing second, short and third and by providing a very potent bat off the bench. After joining the Pirates in '82, he batted .279 in 44 games. And in 1983, he put together the first .300 season of his six-year major league career, batting .304 with six home runs and 25 RBI in 66 games.

In spot starting assignments in 1983, Morrison was outstanding, hitting safely in each of his first 14 starts and batting .348 over his first 28 games.

Jim Morrison

Veteran Amos Otis could fill a big void in the Pirates' outfield this year as the Bucs look to find replacements for Mike Easler and Dave Parker.

In 14 seasons with the Kansas City Royals, the 36-year old Otis established himself as one of the American League's finest offensive and defensive players. He owns almost every offensive record in Royals' history, but may be better known for his outstanding defensive ability. A three-time Gold Glove center-fielder, Amos has compiled a lifetime fielding average of .991, having committed only 45 errors in 5,058 total chances.

Otis, a five-time A.L. All-Star selection and a three-time Kansas City Player of the Year, signed as a free agent with the Bucs last December.

Amos Otis

For the last three seasons, Tony Pena has often been referred to as the best young catcher in baseball. It may be time to drop the word "young" from the phrase.

In 1983, the 26-year old Pena finished eighth in the N.L. in batting with a .301 mark, equalling his career average. He also displayed outstanding power, hitting 15 home runs, 13 of those coming after the All-Star break.

Defensively, Pena continues to show the signs of greatness. Last year, he picked up his first Gold Glove Award, one of many he is sure to receive during his career.

Along with picking up the Gold Glove, Pena was also named to The Sporting News' 1983 post-season All-Star squad.

In a span of just three years, second baseman Johnny Ray has gone from wondering when he would get his chance to play in the major leagues to the point of being one of the National League's most valuable young players.

Acquired from the Houston Astros in August, 1981, the 27-year old switch-hitter has put together two straight outstanding major league seasons with the Pirates. In 1982, he played in every game for the Bucs and batted .281, capturing The Sporting News' N.L. Rookie Player of the Year honor. And in 1983, he hit .283 in 151 games, tied for the league lead in doubles (38) and was the toughest hitter in the league to strike out. Teaming with shortstop Dale Berra, Ray is half of one of the league's most potent doubleplay combinations.

A successful starting pitching staff has to have at least one hurler who they can count on to be ready to take the mound every time it's his turn to throw. Righthander Rick Rhoden fills that role for the Bucs, having started 35 games in each of the last two seasons. And in those 70 starts, Rhoden has averaged almost seven innings per outing.

Acquired from Los Angeles in April, 1979, Rhoden appeared in only one game during the '79 campaign due to arm problems. But since then, he has been a workhorse of the staff and is 40-37 since the trade was made.

In 1983, he got off to a slow start, but came on strong as the year went on, putting together a 10-6 mark in his last 21 starts to close out the year at 13-13 with the N.L.'s ninth best ERA.

Rick Rhoden

After opening the season with the New York Mets' Class AAA Tidewater club, Marvell Wynne was traded to the Pirates last June in exchange for catcher Junior Ortiz and a minor league pitcher. Immediately inserted into the starting lineup in center field, the 24-year old Wynne provided a spark which helped lead the Pirates on a torrid run toward the pennant.

In 103 games with the Bucs last year, Wynne batted .243 with seven home runs and 26 runs batted in. He hit safely in 14 of his first 18 major league games and also put together hitting streaks of 11 and nine games during the latter stages of the season. But his biggest contribution came defensively as he provided the Pirates with the type of coverage which helped people forget the departure of Omar Moreno.

Marvell Wynne

For half his major league career, righthander Don Robinson has been putting outstanding seasons together. But the other half of his career has been spent coming back from shoulder miseries which have often threatened his career.

The 26-year old Robinson is in another comeback stage. After setting career highs for wins (15) and strikeouts (165) in 1982, Don is again trying to rebound from shoulder trouble which limited him to just 36.1 innings pitched with the Pirates in 1983. An arthroscopic shoulder operation, the fourth shoulder surgery of his career—he's also had an elbow operation—is expected to help him pitch pain-free. And if the Pirates get Robinson back in 1984, it will be a bonus addition to an already fine pitching staff.

Don Robinson

Ask a few people what kind of season Manny Sarmiento had in 1983 and you'll probably receive a few blank stares. As the Pirates' middle reliever, the 28-year old Sarmiento quietly did his job, a job that does not often receive a great deal of recognition.

A five-year major league veteran, Sarmiento was 3-5 with four saves and a very respectable 2.99 ERA in '83. In his final nine appearances of the year, he was unscored upon, and in his last 12 outings, he did not allow a base on balls, keys for any successful reliever.

In 1982—his first full year with the Bucs—Manny was outstanding as both a starter and reliever, compiling a 9-4 record and 3.39 ERA in 35 outings.

Today it would produce a comedy of errors.

It was the right tool for the job in the early 1900's. The ball was "dead" and the playing surface slow.

But the game is different now. The ball is livelier and surfaces faster. So modern gloves have been adapted to assure that today's infielders remain a productive part of the game.

The playing fields of our industries have also changed. What was productive years ago is now challenging America's lead in the game.

At Westinghouse, we know that increased productivity is our country's only choice. And we're committed to exploring and developing new ways for American industry to get more productivity out of its natural strengths.

THE PIRATES GLORY IS PRESERVED IN BASEBALL'S HALL OF FAME

The National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum was officially dedicated in ceremonies on June 12, 1939, in Cooperstown, New York, where the game had been invented 100 years earlier by Abner Doubleday. Since those ceremonies were conducted, Cooperstown has served Baseball by helping preserve the game's grace, glory and tradition.

Housed at the Hall of Fame are Baseball's most prized mementoes, documents and publications; items which carry the spirit of the sport and are invaluable to all who love the game and its history.

But the Hall's most prized possessions are its inductees, those players and executives who distinguished themselves beyond all expectation. The bronze plaques and individual displays call to mind the game's greatest performers. They are the ones who have set the standard by which all players are judged. And they are the honored few whom every major leaguer wishes he could emulate.

The first Hall of Fame election was held in 1936, three years before the shrine in Cooperstown was opened. In the first poll conducted that year under the guidance of Ford Frick and in cooperation with the Baseball Writers' Association of America, five players were elected for induction. There were Ty Cobb, who was named on 222 of the 226 ballots cast; Babe Ruth, Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson and former Pirate great Honus Wagner.

Considered by many to have been Baseball's greatest all-around player, Wagner was the first of 11 Pirates to be elected to the Hall of Fame. An outstanding shortstop, sensational hitter and brilliant baserunner, Wagner broke into the major leagues by hitting .344 in 1897 and he enjoyed 17 consecutive .300 seasons, including eight as the National League's batting champion. "The Flying Dutchman" compiled a lifetime batting average of .329 while stealing 720 bases and leading the league in thefts on six occasions.

The next Pirate to be honored with Hall of Fame induction was Fred Clarke, who batted .315 with the Bucs from 1900-1915, but was better known for his managerial accomplishments with Pittsburgh. In his 16 years as player-manager (1900-15), Clarke compiled a record of 1,422-969 (.595), ranking him as the winningest manager in Pirate history and his combined managerial mark with Louisville and the Bucs added up to 1,602 victories, good enough for 10th place on the all-time managers' win list. While with Pittsburgh, Clarke directed the Pirates to three successive pennants and then to their first World Championship in 1909. Clarke's induction into the Hall of Fame came in 1945.

Three years later, in 1948, third baseman Pie Traynor became the third Pirate inductee into Baseball's shrine. One of the greatest third sackers of all time, Traynor was best known for his magnificent defensive prowess. But that defensive ability served to overshadow his consistent offensive ability. A lifetime .320 hitter, Pie drove in 100-plus runs seven times in his career which spanned 1,941 games in the 1920s and '30's. Despite hitting only 58 home runs in his career, Traynor drove in a total of 1,273 runs.

Paul Waner was the next Pirate inductee, having been voted into the Hall of Fame in 1952. Known as "Big Poison," Waner would be joined by his brother, Lloyd "Little Poison" Waner in the Hall in 1967.

Paul Waner played the outfield for the Pirates from 1926 thru 1940 and compiled a lifetime batting average of .333. A line drive hitter, Waner reached the 3,000-hit plateau in his career, captured three batting titles, hit .300 or better 14 times and collected 200 or more hits on eight occasions. He was named the N.L. MVP in 1927.

There was a nine-year gap between Paul Waner's induction and that of Max Carey in 1961. In his career, which spanned the years 1910-26, Carey enjoyed six seasons in which he hit over .300, but he built his reputation as a superb outfielder and as a scientific base stealer. He still holds many N.L. fielding records and led the N.L. in stolen bases on 10 occasions; still a major league high. In 1922, Carey stole 51 bases in 53 attempts. Max' best year came in 1925 when, at age 35, he batted .343 for the season and then hit .458 in the Pirates' World Series win over the Washington Senators.

A great manager, not only with the Pirates (1922-26), but also with St. Louis and Cincinnati, Bill McKechnie received his entry into the Hall of Fame in 1962. McKechnie is the only N.L. skipper in history to manage pennant winners with three different teams—Pittsburgh (1925), the Cardinals (1928) and Reds (1939-40). His '25 Pirates and '40 Reds became World Champions, and he was twice named the league's manager of the year. In all, McKechnie won 1,898 games during his managing career, ranking eighth on the all-time list. Along with managing, McKechnie played for 11 years as an infielder and spent four years in the game as a coach.

Lloyd Waner joined his brother Paul in the Hall of Fame in 1967. He played for the Pirates from 1927 thru 1941 as an outfielder and compiled a lifetime .316 average. "Little Poison" batted .355 as a rookie with the Bucs in '27 and set a rookie record of 223 hits which still stands. He batted over .300 in 10 of his first 12 seasons and accumulated 2,459 hits.

Perhaps the best known of all Baseball executives is Branch Rickey, who served as General Manager of the Pirates from 1951 thru 1955 and was elected to the Hall of Fame along with Lloyd Waner in 1967. Although he saw service in the major leagues as a catcher and later managed the Browns and Cardinals, Rickey's fame came with his work in the front offices of the Cards, Brooklyn Dodgers and Pirates. While with the Dodgers, Rickey broke Baseball's color line by bringing Jackie Robinson to the majors in 1947. He is also credited with developing the concept of a vast farm system and forcing the major leagues to expand.

"Kiki" Cuyler earned his induction into the Hall of Fame in 1968 after 18 seasons in the major leagues in the '20s and '30s. While with the Pirates during the years 1921-27, Cuyler batted .336. One of the game's outstanding outfielders, Cuyler batted above .300 in 10 of his 15 seasons as a regular, topping .350 four times and leading the league in stolen bases on four occasions. His Seventh Game, eighth inning, bases loaded double off Walter Johnson gave the Pirates the win in the '25 World Series.

Roberto Clemente was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1973, less than one year after his death in an airplane crash while on a relief mission to aid earthquake victims in Nicaragua. During his career with the Pirates, which ran from 1955-72, Clemente compiled a .317 lifetime average. He hit over .300 13 times, won four batting titles and amassed 3,000 hits. A brilliant right fielder, Roberto paced all N.L. outfielders in assists five times, was the league's MVP in 1966 and the World Series MVP in 1971 when he batted .414 against Baltimore.

The final Pirate inductee was Ralph Kiner, who entered the Hall in 1975. In his 10-year career which was shortened by a back ailment, Kiner hit 369 home runs and either won or shared home run titles in each of his first seven years with the Pirates. His top output was 54 home runs in 1949, but he also hit 51 in 1947, and his ratio of 7.1 home runs per 100 at-bats is second only to Babe Ruth. Kiner averaged better than 100 RBI in a season and he led the N.L. in slugging percentage three times. His career with the Bucs ran from 1946 thru 1953.

A lifetime of thrills for a major league superstar are surpassed with induction in the Baseball Hall of Fame. The ceremony in the little town of Cooperstown is a highlight which can never be equalled. Just ask those who have been chosen, or those who hope they some day are.

There is no doubt that Rod Scurry would like to forget the 1983 season. After being one of the game's top relievers in 1982, Rod experienced more than his share of problems in '83, finishing the year with a 4-9 record, just seven saves and a 5.56 ERA.

Blessed with one of the best curveballs of any lefthander in baseball, Scurry is looking to return to his 1982 form when he was 4-5 with 14 saves and a 1.74 ERA; the ERA was the best of any major league pitcher with 20 or more appearances.

Teaming with righthander Kent Tekulve, Scurry gives the Pirates a stable bullpen to go with a fine crop of starting pitchers.

Kent Tekulve is "The Stopper" for the Pirates, having performed as the club's top reliever over the last five seasons.

A veteran of 647 major league games since joining the Pirates in 1974, the 37-year old Tekulve has established his credentials as one of the game's top bullpen artists. Only eight pitchers have saved more games, and Teke is one of only 58 pitchers to have reached the 600-game plateau.

Faced with the option of signing as a free agent with another club following the '83 season, Tekulve opted to stay in Pittsburgh where he and his family have made their year-round residence for several years and where he and his wife, Linda, hope to make their permanent home when Teke's career comes to an end.

Kent Tekulve

Jeff Zaske had one of the finest seasons of any minor league reliever in 1983, and the 23-year-old righthander is now considered one of the bright prospects in the Bucs' bullpen.

Primarily a starter until the 1982 season, Zaske broke the all-time Eastern League saves record, with 24 for the Lynn Pirates, the Bucs' Class AA club in 1983. He also compiled a 5-3 record with a 2.18 ERA in 48 games at Lynn before being promoted to Hawaii (Class AAA) late in the season. Jeff was called up by the Bucs in September, but did not pitch in any games.

Jeff struggled with his control early in his career, but in 1982 he walked just 29 and fanned 80 in 74.2 innings at Alexandria (Class A). Last year he walked 38 and struck out 72 in 70.1 innings at Lynn.

Signed by the Pirates in 1978, Zaske has an outstanding fastball and figures to be a nemesis to major league hitters for many years to come.

The Pirates' starting lineup is built around the power potential of first baseman Jason Thompson. And if the Pirates are to be successful in 1984, Thompson will have to carry a large part of the offensive load.

The 29-year old Thompson is one of the most feared sluggers in baseball. Twice in his eight-year career, including 1982, he has hit 31 home runs and driven in over 100 runs. Once a team built around plenty of home run hitters, the Pirates now have to rely on players like Marvell Wynne, Johnny Ray and Bill Madlock to set the table so that Thompson can clear it off.

Thompson has hit 179 home runs in his big league career, including a club-leading 18 with the Bucs in 1983, but the numbers that he produced in 1982—.284, 31 HR, 101 RBI—are the ones he will be shooting to match in 1984.

John Tudor comes to Pittsburgh with the reputation of being one of the outstanding lefthanders the American League has produced in the past several years.

In 1983, the 30-year old Tudor compiled a 13-12 record with the Boston Red Sox. His 13 wins equalled his 1982 output when he was 13-10 with Boston. In four A.L. seasons, Tudor compiled a 39-32 record and a 3.96 ERA in 106 games.

The Pirates acquired Tudor during the Winter Meetings last December in exchange for popular outfielder Mike Easler. In picking up Tudor, the Pirates have added to an already strong starting rotation and have put together one of the few lefthanded trios in any starting rotation; the Bucs' starting staff includes veteran lefties John Candelaria and Larry McWilliams.

Lee Tunnell put together one of the best second halves of any pitcher in the major leagues in 1983. In his final 22 appearances — 17 as a starter — the 23-year old rookie was 10-3. Included in that 10-3 record was a 9-3 mark following the All-Star break.

The Pirates' second selection in the June, 1981, Free Agent Draft, Tunnell opened the 1983 season in the Pirates' starting rotation, but struggled and was moved to the bullpen. But following the All-Star break, Manager Chuck Tanner inserted Lee back into the rotation and his success was immediate. He finished the season with an 11-6 record and 3.65 ERA in 35 appearances (25 starts).

In Tunnell and Jose DeLeon, the Pirates have combined two of the best young starters in the National League.

Lee Tunnell

Veteran Milt May is seeing his second tour of duty with the Pirates, the team he began with as a rookie in 1970.

The 33-year old May joined the Pirates last August when he was acquired from San Francisco for catcher Steve Nicosia. The deal gave the Pirates a much-needed lefthanded hitter coming off the bench while at the same time allowing the Bucs to maintain a strong catching corps.

With Tony Pena expected to catch 140-plus games again and with Gene Tenace also contributing, May's playing time may not be extensive. But his knowledge of the game and his ability to contribute when called upon should prove to make Milt a valuable commodity for the Bucs.

May is a lifetime .265 hitter and a solid defensive receiver.

A COMBINATION OF CARING AND DOING MAKE THE PIRATES AN IMPORTANT CONTRIBUTOR TO THE COMMUNITY

Caring is one of the greatest gifts that can be given to someone in a time of need, for caring is the first step on the way to doing. Through their work in community activities in the Tri-State area, the Pirates are not only showing how much they care, but are also doing the things it takes to aid those less fortunate.

One of the Pirates' most visible displays of caring and doing is Family House. Opened in the Summer of 1983, Family House is a 39-room facility located at 233 McKee Place in the Oakland section of Pittsburgh. The first of its kind, the facility offers modern warmth, support, companionship and comfort to families of adult patients undergoing long-term care in one of the city's modern health facilities.

For a nominal fee, Family House offers modern bedrooms, a centralized kitchen, two complete cooking and dining areas, a laundry and three lounge areas.

The Pirates are proud to join Frank B. Fuhrer and Budweiser, the American Cancer Society and Mellon-Stewart Company as major financial contributors to this important new facility. As part of their overall commitment, the Pirates in 1983 sponsored a special Family House game, developed a special candy bar with Geoffrey Boehm Chocolates, which was sold to raise funds, and made other private and public gestures of support.

And the Pirates' caring and doing will continue to aid Family House in 1984.

HELPING THE HANDICAPPED

Athletes are blessed with skills few people possess, such as the ability to throw a baseball at ninety-plus miles an hour, circle the bases in a matter of seconds or hit a ball out of sight. So, maybe it's a respect for such gifts that helps make it easy for the Pirates to reach out and help handicapped individuals for whom the easiest physical activity becomes a chore.

In 1983, more than 60 groups, representing over 5,300 handicapped residents of Pittsburgh and the Tri-State area, were guests of the Pirates during five specially designated home games during the season, with the following five games being set aside this year for the handicapped: April 19 vs. Philadelphia, May 14 vs. Houston, June 20 vs. Chicago, July 28 vs. St. Louis and September 5 vs. New York. Fans interested in learning more about the Handicapped Nights should write to: Handicapped Series Tickets, Pittsburgh Pirates, Three Rivers Stadium, Pittsburgh, PA 15212.

And then there is the individual player's commitment to the less fortunate. Indeed, almost every member of the Pirate roster is directly involved in a charity or worthy cause, helping to raise both funds and a community awareness for these groups and organizations.

Some examples of Pirate players' work in the community are Kent Tekulve's ongoing support of Myasthenia Gravis, Bill Madlock's work with Cystic Fibrosis' "65 Roses Club" and Larry McWilliams' chairmanship of Special Olympics of Allegheny County.

BRINGING A SMILE

The lovable, slapstick Pirate Parrot has been entertaining people for years. And his efforts in support of charitable, non-profit groups for no fee has meant a great deal to those organizations. In 1983 alone, the Parrot made more than $35,000 worth of free appearances in order to help groups or organizations make a success of a fund-raising program.

If you would like more information on the Pirate Parrot, write to: Pirate Parrot Appearances, Pittsburgh Pirates, Three Rivers Stadium, Pittsburgh, PA 15212, or call (412) 323-5070.

THE CAPTAINS'

The Pirates' Captains' Club is composed of 50 businessmen and women who care enough about Pirate baseball to join forces with the team in promoting major league baseball in the area. The Captain's Club works hand-in-hand with the Bucs in generating interest and support for the club, and in so doing, become part of the organization. If you are interested in learning more about becoming a Captain, contact Steve Greenberg at (412) 323-5028.

MAKING THE GRADE

The Pirates and the Pittsburgh Press expanded their long-running "Straight A" program in 1983 to include over 430 area schools and more than 12,400 students. Designed for students in grades 7-12 throughout southwestern Pennsylvania, the program provides two free tickets for each of three Pirate home games to those students receiving an A or A- average during the last grading period of the first semester. For more information, contact the Pirates' Community Relations Office at (412) 323-5070.

PINCH-HITTING FOR CHARITY

The Pirate Pinch-Hitters is an organization begun in 1970 by women whose husbands are involved in professional baseball. The group has raised thousands of dollars over the years for charities through a number of community events, and may be able to aid your favorite charity. If you would like further information on the Pinch-Hitters, write: Pirate Pinch-Hitters, P.O. Box 7013, Pittsburgh, PA 15212.

CPR AND THE BUCS

Baseball's national charity is CPR, or cardiopulmonary resuscitation. For the third consecutive year, the Pirates will be instructing interested citizens in the proper skills of CPR. More than 500 persons took part in the program in 1983, with more expected when classes are held at Three Rivers Stadium this year.

LET THE MUSIC PLAY

Each year, the Pirates host numerous area marching bands who perform prior to a Pirate home game. Following the performance, members of the band are guests of the Pirates for that game. To learn more about having your band perform, call (412) 323-5070.

COMMUNITY NIGHTS

A great way to bring your community together is a "Community Night" at a Pirate game. It's a special way to raise funds for a community project or merely seeing your town's name in lights on the giant scoreboard. For Community Night information, contact the Pirates' Group Sales Office at (412) 323-5028.

HUNDREDS OF OTHER ACTIVITIES

A few more of the hundreds of activities which the Pirates are involved in during the 1984 season are Fire Prevention Day, Police and Fire Department Recognition Day, Senior Citizen Discount Days, College and Technical School Students Games, Knothole Day and Scouting Day. For more information on these in-stadium events, contact the Pirates at (412) 323-5070.

For nearly 50 years, the Pittsburgh Pirates have worked with non-profit, charitable organizations to provide unique opportunities for fund-raising or simply a special day to bring the group together. It is a combination of caring and doing which is unmatched in the City and will continue as long as there are those who need a little help, a helping hand.

"Why I'm so big on TWA"

—by Wilt Chamberlain

You don't have to be 7'1" to be big on TWA. You just have to like being comfortable.

Take their planes, for instance.

The only widebodies TWA flies are the 747, the L-1011 and the brand-new 767—big, roomy widebodies even a tallbody can love.

A fast break.

TWA's Airport Express.®

Another nice thing is how TWA can get you to those widebodies without making you run through the airport.

You don't have to rush to make sure you'll get the kind of seat you want. TWA's Advance Seat Selection lets you reserve it up to 30 days in advance.

Coming home, you don't even have to check in.

With TWA's Round-Trip Check-In®, you can get a boarding pass for your flight back when you check in for your flight out.

So instead of standing in line, you can spend your time doing something else.

Even if it's doing nothing but relaxing.

Taking care of business. TWA's Ambassador Class.<sup>sm</sup>

From where I sit, flying on business ought to be a pleasure. Which brings me to TWA's Ambassador Class.

It's a separate business cabin where the seats are bigger and wider than coach. With fewer seats per row, so you're never more than one seat from the aisle.

Then, to go with all the extra room, lots of extras. A special check-in desk in the airport. Complimentary cocktails and wines in flight. Entrees served on china and linen (little things mean a lot—even to a big guy).

Even the service is relaxing. Friendly, attentive. But TWA's always been pretty good at that.

Fact is, I could go on and on about how great TWA is. But you get the idea. Besides, I promised to keep it short. Call your travel agent or TWA.

You're going to like us

First baseman Hedi Vargas has been one of the minor leagues' pure power hitters since signing his first professional contract in 1977. Now, the 25-year old Vargas is ready to step in and contribute at the major league level.

Vargas, who hit 108 home runs between 1979 and 1982, struggled through an injury filled year in 1983. He opened the season on the disabled list with the Pirates (pinched nerve in neck) which greatly limited his playing time. He eventually returned to the Pirates' Class AAA Hawaii club where he appeared in 53 games, batting .348 with 12 home runs and 46 RBI.

A powerful righthanded hitter, Vargas may see action as a replacement at first base at times for Jason Thompson, plus, he could make big contributions coming off the bench in key pinch-hit situations.

Hedi Vargas

It's hard to imagine that a demotion can work to a player's advantage, but in the case of lefthander Chris Green, being sent from Class AAA to Class AA in 1983 may have been just the thing to get him to the major leagues.

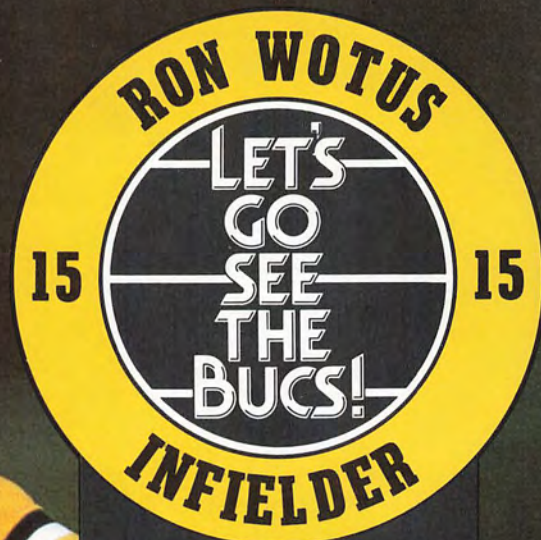

The 23-year old Green, a starting pitcher his entire minor league career, opened the '83 season at Hawaii but immediately found himself struggling as he dropped nine straight decisions. The Pirates then sent Green back to Lynn in mid-June and converted him to a short reliever. The move was an immediate success as Chris adapted to the role and showed that his major league future may be as an outstanding relief pitcher.

Signed by the Pirates in 1979, Chris' out-pitch is an outstanding fastball which has allowed him to strike out 504 batters in 648.2 professional innings.

Chris Green

In his first three professional seasons, infielder Ron Wotus was a minor league utility player, which means his chances of making the major leagues were not very good. But in 1982 with the Pirates' Class AA Buffalo club, the 23-year old Wotus got his chance to play regularly and has been making the most of his opportunities ever since.

In 1983 with Hawaii, Wotus batted .301 with a club-high 28 doubles, 10 home runs and 62 RBI in 125 games. And in September, he was called up to the Pirates for the first time in his career and turned in some fine defensive performances in five games down the stretch.

Wotus has the ability to play all four infield positions as well as the outfield, and is also capable of making big contributions with his bat.

Ron Wotus

Coca-Cola

Trade-mark ®

Coke® is it!

"Coca-Cola" and "Coke" are registered trade-marks of The Coca-Cola Company.

Rafael Belliard has established credentials in the minor leagues as a superb defensive infielder. And it is that defensive ability that has carried him from Rookie League baseball to the major leagues in a very short span of time.

The 22-year old Belliard originally signed with the Pirates in 1980 and made his major league debut with the Pirates at the age of 20 when he appeared in nine games in September.

In 1983, Rafael spent the entire minor league season at the Pirates' Class AA Lynn club and hit .262 in 127 games. He again joined the Pirates in September and played in four games.

CATCH PART OF THE 1984 OLYMPICS!

Now you can own a 1984 Olympic Games baseball—by Rawlings, of course.

Teams from four continents will compete in an exhibition baseball tournament at the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles (the games will be played in Dodger Stadium). So when the L.A. 1984 Olympic Committee designated a baseball supplier, the logical choice was Rawlings, the official manufacturer of Major League baseballs. And now you can purchase one of the 1984 Olympic Games baseballs at your local Rawlings sporting goods store. Not a miniature, not a replica—but a ball exactly like those designated for the 1984 Olympics. So catch a part of Olympic history at your Rawlings dealer today.

THE PIRATES CONTINUE TO PRODUCE TOP MAJOR LEAGUE TALENT

When the wagon train gets attacked on TV, the call goes out for the Cavalry. And, when the Pirates need reinforcements at the major league level, the bugle cry is aimed at their superb farm system.

Judging by the outstanding talent that was displayed in the Pirates' training camp this past spring, the Bucs' "cavalrymen" are ready, willing and able to heed the call this season or whenever the need arises.

Here is a rundown of some of the top prospects on the horizon for the Pirates:

PITCHING: Lefthanders Dave Tomlin, Jeff Little, and Alfonso Pulido, and righthanders Andy Rincon, Steve Senteney and Jim Winn have all seen action at the big league level in previous seasons. Tomlin is a veteran who has pitched with San Diego, Cincinnati and the Pirates; Little and Rincon have been in the majors with Minnesota and St. Louis, respectively, while the other four youngsters were up with the Pirates during 1983.

Three other fine young pitchers who will be seeing action in the majors in the very near future are righthanders Mike Bielecki and Ray Krawczyk and lefthander Ravelo Manzanillo.

STEVE HERZ

RUBEN RODRIGUEZ

DIMAS GUTIERREZ

ANDY HALL

DENNY GONZALEZ

SAMMY KHALIFA

TRENCH DAVIS

CATCHING: The Pirates have made it a tradition of developing superb catchers over the years, including such standouts as Manny Sanguillen, Ed Ott, Steve Nicosia, Junior Ortiz and Tony Pena. And that tradition is continuing as Stan Cliburn, Steve Herz, Andy Hall and Ruben Rodriguez continue to make improvements and move up to challenge for spots on the big league roster.

INFIELD: There is an abundance of talented infielders currently serving their apprenticeships throughout the Pirate farm system, with several just a step away from contributing to the Pirates' bright future.

Among the infielders who impressed Chuck Tanner and his coaching staff during spring drills were Denny Gonzalez, Dimas Gutierrez, Sammy Khalifa and Jim Opie.

OUTFIELD: As has been the case with their catching corps, the Pirates have been turning out quality outfielders for what seems like centuries. And leading the newest young crop is a quartet of talented performers who could make some instant contributions to the Bucs' cause.

The four outfielders who showed outstanding ability during the spring are Joe Orsulak, Trench Davis, Bobby Bonilla and Benny Distefano.

No major league team works one year at a time. The future is always a major consideration, and the development of quality players within the farm system is of vital importance. In the Pirates' case, that development is continuing and bodes well for not only 1984, but also for '85, '86 and beyond.

JIM OPIE

BOBBY BONILLA

JOE ORSULAK

BENNY DISTEFANO

This year's promotional calendar is filled with activities you're going to enjoy! From spectacular fireworks displays and great giveaways to our fabulous $10,000 Cash Scramble! Best of all, you'll enjoy the greatest baseball action anywhere, so Let's Go See The Bucs!

APRIL

1. Opening Day—Tuesday, April 17, 12:35 p.m. vs. the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies. Great pre-game activities focusing on the United States' hosting of the Summer Olympic Games, plus a Bucco Coupon Book and Y97 Pirate bumper sticker giveaway highlight the Bucs' home opener.

2. Fireworks Night I—Saturday, April 28, 7:05 p.m. vs. the Chicago Cubs. The first of three spectacular Sky Concerts—fireworks with music—will follow the battle of these two Eastern Division foes. Shop N Save is this year's fine sponsor of all three Fireworks Nights.

3. Calendar Day—Sunday, April 29, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Chicago Cubs. The first 20,000 fans attending the Pirates-Cubs game will receive a full-color Pirate action calendar running from April through March, 1985. Calendar Day is sponsored by Bonanza Restaurants. It is also Fire Prevention Day at Three Rivers.

MAY

4. Parrot's Birthday/Wallet Day—Saturday, May 5, 1:20 p.m. vs. the N.L. Western Division champion Los Angeles Dodgers. Everyone is invited to help celebrate the Pirate Parrot's fifth birthday, with the first 15,000 fans 14 years of age and under receiving an attractive and useful Pirate wallet compliments of Chuck E. Cheese. It is also Youth Baseball Day at Three Rivers.

5. Warm-Up Shirt Day—Sunday, May 6, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Dodgers. The first 15,000 youngsters 14 and under will receive a handsome Pirate warm-up shirt, compliments of Thrift Drug. Sunday, May 6, is also Safety Patrol Day.

6. Bill Madlock Poster Night—Saturday, May 19, 7:05 p.m. vs. the Atlanta Braves. Four-time National League batting champion Bill Madlock will be honored with the first 20,000 fans entering Three Rivers receiving a full-color Bill Madlock Poster, courtesy of Powerhouse Candy.

7. Cap Day—Sunday, May 20, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Braves. One of the most popular of all Pirate giveaway days, Cap Day promises to be great once again. All fans attending the game against the Braves will get their very own Pirate baseball cap, compliments of 7-Up. Cap Day will also be Boy and Girl Scouting Day.

JUNE

8. San Diego Chicken/Baseball Immortals Poster Night—Friday, June 1, 7:35 p.m. vs. the Montreal Expos. One of the zaniest characters in all of sports, the San Diego Chicken will romp around entertaining Pirate fans with his antics. The Chicken's appearance is sponsored by Foodland. And the first 20,000 fans receive a color poster, featuring some of the game's greatest, compliments of Chef Boyardee.

9. Ball Night/Father-Son/Daughter Game—Saturday, June 2, 7:05 p.m. vs. the Expos. The Pirates and Mattel Hot Wheels team up to sponsor Ball Night with the first 15,000 youngsters 14 and under receiving a free Pirate baseball. Prior to the game, the Pirate Players will oppose their children in the annual Father-Son/Daughter Game.

10. Beach Towel Day—Sunday, June 3, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Expos. The first 20,000 fans attending this game with the Expos will receive an attractive Pirate beach towel.

11. U.S. National Baseball Team—Tuesday, June 19, 7:35 p.m. The U.S. National Baseball Team, which will compete in the 1984 Summer Games in Los Angeles, will play a game vs. area all-stars prior to the Bucs-Cubs game. This chance to see America's finest amateur baseball players is brought to you by the Pirates and General Electric.

12. Painter's Cap Night—Friday, June 22, 7:35 p.m. vs. the Philadelphia Phillies. A new item on the Pirates' promotions calendar, the Pirates' Painter's Cap will be given to the first 20,000 fans attending the game with the Phils. This unique promotion is sponsored by Gulf.

13. Old Timer's Night—Saturday, June 23, 7:05 p.m. vs. the Phillies. The Pirate-Phillies matchups through the years have been epic struggles. And now, the two teams have put together old timer's teams which will square off in a home-and-home series in an effort to rekindle some great memories. The Old Timer's contest will precede the regularly scheduled matchup between the Bucs and Phils and is being sponsored by Budweiser.

14. Jersey Day—Sunday, June 24, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Phillies. An outstanding promotions weekend is capped off on Sunday when the Pirates and Hostess team up to present Pirate Jersey Day. The first 15,000 fans 14 and under coming to the homestand-closing contest with the Phils will receive a Pirate team jersey.

JULY

15. Fireworks Night II/Home Run Hitters Contest—Friday, July 13, 7:35 p.m. vs. the San Francisco Giants. The first promotions following the All-Star break will be Fireworks Night II, sure to get the Pirates blazing toward the N.L. East title, and the annual home run hitter's contest with Pirate players trying to cash in with the long ball for lucky fans who will win trips via TWA. Shop N Save again teams with the Pirates with pride to sponsor this spectacular Sky Concert with TWA working with the Bucs on the Home Run Hitters Contest.

16. Roll-Up Hat Day—Saturday, July 14, 1:50 p.m. vs. the Giants. The first 10,000 adults—21 and over—attending the game with the Giants will receive a Pirates Roll-Up Hat, compliments of Valvoline.

17. Wrist Watch Day—Sunday, July 15, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Giants. The first 15,000 youngsters 14 and under will receive this great Pirates digital watch, compliments of Gimbels.

18. Family House Benefit Game—Thursday, July 19, 7:35 p.m. vs. the San Diego Padres. The Pirates lent their support to The Family House, a University Health Center project, in 1983 and are continuing to help out by donating a portion of each paid admission from this game to help this worthy cause.

19. Mug Night—Friday, July 20, 7:35 p.m. vs. the Padres. Budweiser and the Bucs team up for Pirate Mug Night with the first 15,000 adults—21 and over—receiving this durable plastic mug.

20. $10,000 Cash Scramble—Saturday, July 21, 7:05 p.m. vs. the Padres. USAIR sponsors the $10,000 Cash Scramble on the field prior to the Bucs-Padres game. Lucky participants can bring home lots of money!

21. Jacket Day—Sunday, July 22, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Padres. The kids benefit from this special day as the first 20,000 youngsters 14 and under attending the game receive a great Pirate jacket.

22. Olympic Pin Night—Friday, July 27, 7:35 p.m. vs. the St. Louis Cardinals. The first 10,000 fans attending the game with the Red Birds will receive an attractive U.S. Olympic pin, compliments of our friends at Cameron Coca-Cola.

23. Camera Day—Saturday, July 28, 2:15 p.m. vs. the Cards. Prior to the afternoon contest with St. Louis, all fans will be allowed out onto the field to take photos of their favorite Pirate players. This is always one of the most popular days on the promotions slate and the Pirates are pleased to host it once again.

24. Visor Day/KDKA Music Spectacular—Sunday, July 29, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Cards. What better item to give away on a bright sunny Sunday afternoon than a Pirate Sun Visor, compliments of Budweiser. The first 20,000 adults—21 and over—will receive a visor upon entering the gates. And, following the game, the Pirates and KDKA will team up to present a music spectacular featuring top musical entertainment.

AUGUST

25. Helmet Weekend—Saturday—Sunday, August 4-5, 7:05 p.m. and 1:35 p.m., respectively, vs. the New York Mets. Not one but two chances for Pirate fans 14 and under to receive a plastic Pirate batting helmet, compliments of Heinz.

26. Color Team Poster Night—Saturday, August 18, 7:05 p.m. vs. the Houston Astros. All fans attending the Saturday evening contest with Houston will receive a color poster featuring the 1984 Pirates.

27. Equipment Bag Day—Sunday, August 19, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Astros. The first 20,000 fans attending the Bucs-Astros game will receive a durable Pirate equipment bag, compliments of Glad, the same people who make those durable kitchen and trash bags.

28. Fireworks Night III—Saturday, August 25, 7:05 p.m. vs. the Cincinnati Reds. The third, final and probably most spectacular of the Pirates' post-game Sky Concerts will be presented on August 25. The Bucs and Shop N Save will pull out all stops to make this a most memorable evening of entertainment.

29. Back-To-School Thermos Day—Sunday, August 26, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Reds. We know that the kids would rather not be reminded about the return to school, but to make it a little easier, the Pirates and Foodland will give a great Pirate thermos to the first 15,000 youngsters 14 and under who attend the game with the Reds.

SEPTEMBER

30. Scarf Day—Sunday, September 9, 1:35 p.m. vs. the St. Louis Cardinals. The first 15,000 fans attending this game can get a head start on the chilly weather by receiving a free and attractive Pirate Scarf.

31. Prize Day—Sunday, September 23, 1:35 p.m. vs. the Philadelphia Phillies. This series itself might prove to be the biggest of the season. And, the Pirates will do even more by conducting their annual Prize Day on Sunday. Trips, vehicles and many other great prizes will be given away throughout this exciting afternoon.

Buck Nights—A total of six Buck Nights are being offered in 1984. Fans can save $1.50 off the price of a ticket on those nights. Buck Nights are scheduled for:
